"When playing Christian," Miss Crosman any, "I have tried to typify the soul. Your soul, my soul, that part of us which struggles toward the higher and better. Christian is that soul. He is the symbol of every individual as opposed to every clod. The shining sword seems to me to be our will to do right. Every time I lift it I feel that all of my ending have become one, and that I am going to prevail against that conglomerate foe. I try to make every human soul in the audience feel that I am portraying its struggle and defeats and triumphs."

THERE ARE VARIOUS METHODS.

ster Post-Express, under the ng "How Are Plays Written?" editorially speculates on methods employed in this artistic industry. "Unfortunately for an ambitious young public that would like nothing better than to make a fortune by acturing dramas," says the Post-Bapress, "there is no good text book on the

Of course there are no text books on play-writing that go beyond technical matters, and technique, while really very desirable in a play, cannot alone furnish one. There must be in the writer of a play imagina-tion, the ability to conjure strengly dramatic. tion, the ability to conjure strongly dramatic situations, and a like capacity to bring forth contrasting characters that will move dramatically through a story adequate to assist in holding attention. A thousand prescriptions for playwriting, each differing in some measure from all the others, may be fabrated analysis. Some tree of several property of the King's story of the contract o seize technical essentials and work them to its individual conception and purpose.

"If SHARPSPEARE had kept a note book and jotted down it in his method of going to work, the names of the books he rend for plots and his way of endowing a character with life, it would be a real help to the neophyte," says the Post-Express. But really would it be a help? It probably would not assist the novice more clearly or definitely than a reading of SHAKESPEARE'S plays, and even the reading would not afford a means beyond suggestion in a technical way, for the manner of the plays is so vast that it stuns the ordinary mind that would evolve

A study of the works of the greater dra-natic geniuses will quickly show their uneness to one another in all things, tech-me included. Genius has always risen sunique included. Genius has always risen su-perior to rules and modes, and always will. And there is too much following of models and too much of the mechanical and hack-neyed in playwriting, as there is in other forms of endeavor classed as artistic. It would be a woful waste of time and effort for any young man or woman to adopt play-writing as he or she would undertake any-thing else in which it is assumed that a more mistery of certain forms is mainly

It is likely that at some time every modern dramatist of note has disclosed in print or privately his individual method in playwriting. Certainly many have told in the press just how they write plays. And as far as memory serves, no two of these have disclosed methods at all alike. Each works in his own way his own little dramatic mir acles to perform. This the Post-Repress or sentially admits, after giving two or three dissimilar habits as confessed by successful dramatists, and it is the truth. No one can tell another how to write a play, for indi-viduality is perhaps more essential in this vocation than in any other artistic calling, while in it imitation is more patent than in any other.

A REFORMER.

A remoon with a prefix of "Doctor," inded-nite as between medicine and theology, is active in the notion that he has a mission to reform public amusements and matters of art. In other words, with no particular moral agency other than that which he himself exhales—and like one or two other reformers in mind, his remedies seem to be more suggestive in their method and manner than the tills he moved obtains ner than the ills be would abolish showing no legitimate reason for his ac-tivity, this crusader is going from place to place with the sole result, as far as chron-icled, of fixing something akin to ridicule upon himself.

Descending upon Cleveland the other day, this self-appointed regulator of the theatre and public art exhibitions excited resentment as an interloper. Persons in that city at least as authoritative in its defense as he was in attack gave him to understand that he was not wanted there. Rebuked for meddling as to public amusements, he assailed the nude figures that adorn the new federal building in that city as corrupters of public morality and misrepresentative of of public morality and misrepresentative of real art. It may be assumed, however, that the authorities at .Washington, as well as the citizens of Cleveland, are quite well astisfied with the structure as it stands.

In Buffalo this reformer visited various theatres, seeking for features which would bear out his crusade. He objected to a chorus dance which the Inquirer of that city declares had no characteristic whatever painst which an objection could legiti-ately lie. Then he addressed a meeting of clergymen, to whom he denounced the-atrical performances "in which villains tri-umph and vice is allowed to go rampant."
This no doubt would be legitimate if any such performances could be discovered in the theatre. They exist, of course, only in this reformer's imagination.

There are many things, unhappily, in the reformation of which such crusaders might profitably enlist themselves; but the things that cry for reform attract few refo because activity against them will not result in what most persons of this sort itch for and love—notoriety.

THE USHER

Welford Beaton writes to THE MIN about a very interesting phase of work on the stage—the accidental, which seldom finds the stage—the accidental, which seldom finds the actors prepared and at ease.

"Bome time ago," he says, "in a New York paper I read a number of interviews with actors and actresses who indignantly denied the previously published pronouncement of a stage director that he and the author supplied the brains of the stage, and that those who filled the parts were the automatons who moved, but to show the skill of the other two. I am neither stage director, author, nor actormerely one of the great number who sit 'out in front'—but in Minneapolis a few nights ago I saw something of a sort with which every patron of the stage is familiar, and will you allow me to ask 'Why'?" And Mr. Beaton continues:

Things never occur" in any of his productions.
Thus each acknowledges the guilt of his class.
The frequency with which such things occur in merobeastive testiment to the truth of the consultion of the stage director that actors do not hink; but does it clear the stage director? If, a he says, actors are told everything they must, why are they not told to be human at times and think for themselves? Of course, we have more of instances when actors have proven unit to such emergencies, but my observation as been that the times when they have not far thrumber the others.

Plake," said the Stor, "has called attention to important matters that have attracted but little attention in this State. These things should estimate should amend the statutes at the carliest opportunity."

VIOLA ALLEN RETURNS.

After two months in Europe, Viola Allen returned last Sunday with two plays and plans for two ensues. One of the plays is Anthony P. Warrion's Irone Wycherly, in which Losa Ashawell is making a success in London. The other is an administion of The Bereall, by Henry Bernstein. Miss Allen will appear first in Irone Wycherly, the translation of the other.

It is medium to any that, as a rule, the sero president actors are either so delikel are emergency or so adaptable mentally to the mergeried that in the used of such cases they as carry off a direction subtly and most a section bit of luminoss, so that it all seems a would add to the confusion of the measure.

Let every actor, of any age and period of experience, be told to meet and extendent the little casualties of the stage just as he would meet and surmount similar things in actual life. And to do this is a simple matter, even with lines to be spoken or other "business" to be done at the same time, if its necessity be emphasized in the drilling of the player.

STOCK COMPANIES INCREASE

The recent opening of new permanent stock companies in Breektyn, Passaic, Ban Antonio and number of other cities is believed to indicate further substantial increase this season in this hass of dramatic organizations.

Archie Selwyn, of Selwyn and Company, play-rockers, is of the opinion that by next spring here will be twice as many stock companies in peraction as there are at present.

"I am led to this belief," said he to a representative of Trus Munson, "by the number of inquiries we are receiving from all parts of the tountry regarding plays for stock production. Sany of these inquiries come from cities where took companies have not been thought of hitherts."

stock companies have not been thought of hitherit."

A similar opinion is expressed at the offices of Darcy and Wolford, play brokers. Paul Reott, the general manager, predicted to Thu Mixnon representative that inside of a month there would be at least a dosen new stock organisations. "And it is a good thing for the profession, teo," he added, "for where is the next cropof actors to come from if not from stock and repertoire companies?"

Two excellent reasons for the tendency toward an increase in permanent stock organizations may be found in the surplus of theatres that appears to exist, in comparison with the number of successful paying traveling attractions now on tour, and the fact that well managed stock companies have almost universally proven profitables.

Along the same line is an increase in the number of repertoire companies which is being freely predicted, especially for the smaller cities and towns. A prominent Ohio circuit of thestres is said to have a number of repertoire organizations in contemplation for next season, the idea being to play these attractions chiefly in the theatres of the circuit.

The special benefit performance of the New York Chapter given at St. Chrysostom's Parish Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, under the direction of Irene Ackerman, while presenting several musical and literary attractions of a very high degree of merit, gave especial pleasure to all who were present by the introduction of a comedicta from the pen of Edith Ellis Baker, entitled Bobby's Birthday. The part of Bobby was played by little Veima Zeigler, who displayed exceptional intelligence and capability in a child's part, which the audience heartily entryed. George Louis Kearns gave a very happy rendering of the part of Dr. Smith, and Mrs. Hudson Liston brought to the delineation of the character of Bluster the rich humor and the artistic finish of the gifted old-time actor, and delineation.

Mr. Marini began the compilation as a lad and carried it through years of theatregoing. It was intended to give those books to the Pispers' Club, but Mrs. Piske suggested that they would evoke greater interest in the greats of the Actors' Fund House on States Island, many of them having played in New Oriesna during the period, and through her the books will find this destination.

In Old Kentucky held the boards at the Salt Lake Theatre the first half of the week. Business opened light, but fluished to slunost capacity. The co., was very estimactory, especially May Stockton as Heady Reierly. On Nov. 22 a complimentary benefit was tendered to James Glbson, the well-known chief door keeper of the house. Mr. Glbson has faithfully served in this capacity for nearly fifteen years. Some mouths since he had the misfortune to meet with an accident. Local artists, musicians and others gave freely their services, and a generous turnout of the late. The first half of the week. Business opened light, but fluished to slinest copy.

Robert L. Dailey and company were seen at the Orghesse. Yoshisers, in Mr. Dailey's new fares, Fun in a Troiley Car, which is as joily a conglemention of fungy disuntions and floor as last been seen in vandeville in many a day. Mr. Dailey carries a set showing the interior of a car, and he impersonates the configures. All norts of queer characters get on and off, and the star is hapt beny exchanging reparties with them. There are any number of life of amening business, and the fun is not allowed to lag for a moment. Mr. Dailey has a big winner in this act, which will go with any audience that has the least sense of hunor.

Estertainers from Italy.

Les Trombetta, a man and a woman who hall from Italy, made their first American appearance at the Colonial. They are bright and anappy and make a good impression from the start with their osay, confident manner. The burden of the work falls upon the man, who is a fairly deverminic, the best tricks in his act being duplicates of those perfarance here for many years by the immented Finikowski, even the tapping of the high hat in the fireworks imitations being used. The team sang "The Whistling Coon" in Italian and did a few other little things that, all told, made up a very pleasing performance.

Well-Trained Elaphants.

The Seven Yullians made their American debut at the New York in a Risley act that won enthusiastic approval. There are really eight people in the troupe, four men and four boys. The tossing and catching are superbly done, the performers showing a grace and agility truly remarkatio. The boys wear tights and the men evening dress, and the contrast is pleasing.

SIE HASSAN BEN ALI ARRIVES.

Sie Hassan Ben All, the Arabian impresario, arrived in New York hast week on the Hassa-tonic, and went at once to Coney Island, where he makes his headquarters when in America. To his dismay he found that the branch of the Jenkins Trust Company, in which he had on deposit a large amount of money, had been closed. However, like the rat in the fable, he had provided for emergencies of this kind, and the closing of the Jenkins bank did not embarrass him to any extent. Hassan announces that he has under way a hig enterprise to be known as the Wild Bast, in which 150 natives of Northwest Africa will appear, together with a large collection of camels, guata, horses, mules and dogs. The organisation will make its first appearance at the Schumann, Berlin, in Pebruary.

Fifty-eighth Street.

Bthel Levey has a big following on the East fills, and her admirers turned out in large numbers to give her a rousing welcome. Edwards Davis stirred these who like good acting by his fine performance in The Unmasking, assisted by Adule Flood and Harrison Wethernil. Hillds fipong scored in the De Mille-Bynner sketch, Kit, which has a real Western flavor. Matthews and Ashley hit the fancy of the patrona, the Hebrew character being especially reliabled. The Metsetti Troupe turned somerounits and also the basis of the small boys tystairs. Swor Brothers, comedians; Willie Westen, the clever comic vocalist, Gertrella, and the pictures were the other numbers.

W. H. Thompson repeated his delightful parformance of For Love's Sweet Sake, in which he is alty assisted by Thomas H. Inco. W. C. Fields, who stands without a superior as an eccentric juggier, kept the audience in great humor with his old and original tricks. His manner and method have been copied extensively, but he still controls his personality, which is the resson that he maintains his commanding position. Howard and Howard got off after a struggle, as the encores were so insistent that they had to make any number of bows. The Nichols Sisters kept up their record as star funnakers in black-face.
The Big City Quariette sang well, but the set would be improved if "Bob" Webb had more to do. Besnah and Miller found favor, as they are hard workers. Carletta, the "Human Dragon," and the pictures were well received.
Hal Staphens and company and the Seven Querillas are reviewed elsewhere.

Staphens was in the bill at the 125th Marshall P. Wilder has sent out announcements to the effect that for the rest of this sentence on he will resume his work as a platform entertainer and will devote himself to church entertainer and will devote himself to the church entertainer and will also be prepared to give the travel tails, and the booked has been turned over to the Empire Circuit and hereafter will present buries and the country of the Empire. A date booked has been turned over to the Empire Circuit and hereafter will present buriesque attractions. OBITUARY.

Henry Kemble,

Henry Kemble, a comedian well known on the London stage, after a long illness, died in Jersey. Engiand, on Nov. 17. He was after-une years old. Mr. Kemble was conscious up to the time of his death and left a telegram to his lifelong friends, Mrs. Leigh and Lady Bancrott, saying. "All is over. God biless you."

Mr. Kemble was born on June 1, 1848. He was the son of Captain Henry James Kemble, a grandson of Charles Kemble, the famous actor, and the grand-nephew of Mrs. Siddons.

He was known among his friends as "The Beetle," a nickname said to have been given him in his youth by a friend at the Garrick Club in London on account of a long brown cloak he was in the habit of wearing. He played the First Gravedigger in an anateur performance of Hamlet, after which he made his appearance on the professional stage in Dublin in 1867. In 1874 he made his London debut at Drury Lane Theatre, playing in Amy Robaszt. His next engineer of Wales Theatre. From there he went to the Haymarket with the same company.

London Charles Mathews, Phelps, Barry, Sollivan, Toole, Lady Martin, William Terriss, Beerbohm Tree, and many other prominent players. He was very pupular in farce and was most mecessful in such plays as Nerves, Jane, and Husband and Wife. In more recent years he played in Mr. Hopkinson and Public Opinion. In Feb., 1900, he appeared as Sir Theophilus Brown in My Dunghter-in-Law. In Sept., 1903, as the Earl of Loam in The Admirable Crichton.

Harold A. Powers.

Harold A. Powers, who was being featured in the musical comedy, A Full Moon, died at the home of his shirer, in Camden, N. J. on Nov. 30. His death was due to internal hemorrhages. Mr. Powers had not been well for some time. He left his company in Youngstown. Ohio, on Nov. 23, and went to Camden, N. J. His condition showed some improvement on Thankagiving Day and he began to make preparations to rejoin his company in New Castle, Obio, on Dec. 2. On the morning of Nov. 30 he had a sinking spell and passed away that night at 9.45 p.m. Mr. Fowers was born in Bay City. Mich., Bec. 9, 187a. He started in the theatrical business at the age of fourteen years, at the Baidwin Theatre in San Francisco, with the first stock company unt on there. When sixteen years old he went on the road with Joseph Jefferson's company, and was with that organization for two seasons. He was then engaged to support Clay Clement in The New Dominion. After the class of that season he was engaged for juvenile leads with the Baldwin Melville stock company of New Orleans. He continued in stock work for about five years, playing in the Baldwin Melville, Woodward, and other well-known stock companies in the South and West. He was married three times. His first wife was Florence Curtin, who died in 1894, leaving him a son six weeks old. His second wife was Elizabeth Courtney, whom he married in 1896, and who died in 1800. His third wife, who survives him.

12 YEARS OF MISERY

Boy's Eczema Pronounced Incurable-Used 2 Sets Cuticura Remedies-Skin now Smooth as Silk

"Your worderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of talsecy I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of dectors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. One doctor told me that my sou's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad lob. One evening I decided to give Cuticura a trial. When I had used the first box of Cuticura Ointment there were the control of ment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Remedies my child was cured. His skin is now as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."
